

CONTENTS

Forewordvi
Acknowledgementsvii
Introduction by the editors1
1. The major research claims3
 Public funding of higher education in South Africa by means of formulae11
1. Introduction11
2. Benefits of state subsidization of higher education institutions by means of a formula12
3. The evolution of funding mechanisms for universities and technikons since 195113
4. The new funding framework (NFF) for public higher education30
5. Subsidy formulae for HE in South Africa classified according to Jongbloed's two dimensions48
6. Conclusion49
 Information and Communication Technologies (ICTs) and South African higher education: understanding/s (of) the landscape53
1. Introduction53
2. Policies and structures55
3. Practitioner-based notions of ICTs in South African higher education58
4. Interpretations of ICT and higher education change59
5. Key issues66
6. Conclusion71

Systemic governance, public accountability and institutional autonomy	77
1. Introduction	77
2. Deliberative democracy	81
3. Deliberation and the university	85
4. Governance and regulation of higher education	88
5. Conclusion: Conditional autonomy and academic freedom	92
Institutional culture as keyword	97
1. Introduction	97
2. The emergence of organizational culture	99
3. From organizational to institutional culture	104
4. Institutional culture(s) in South Africa	106
5. Conclusion	114
Equity access and success: Adult learners in public higher education	123
1. Introduction	123
2. Who is an adult learner?	127
3. Key themes on adult learners within higher education: An overview of the literature	128
4. Research methodology and design	133
5. Access and participation of adult learners across the public higher education system	134
6. Adult learners in three institutions	138
7. Issues emerging across the case studies and the HEMIS data	146
8. Concluding remarks and observations	149

Tracing and explaining change in higher education: The South African case . . .	157
1. Introduction	157
2. The knowledge base on higher education in South Africa	158
3. Higher education performance in South Africa: A brief survey with respect to equity achievements	160
4. A case study of higher education change: The national qualifications framework	165
5. A case study of higher education change: Private higher education in South Africa, 1994 - 2004	174
6. Explaining change in higher education	179
7. Conclusion	182